For the luxury skincare lover: MIYU Beauty Hydrate Mi Beauty Essence

Founded just this past year by fellow blogger Connie Tai, MIYU Beauty is a new Canadian brand that's stealing hearts across the blogosphere. I'm having difficulties putting together a review of the line (I live in fear of the glycerine ratios in facial sprays, which do wonders for a few days but always seem to break me out after a week), but I can't find a single bad thing to say about the aesthetic — or the people behind the brand.

Beautifully housed in luxe-but-lightweight packaging with L'adurée-inspired details, the MIYU facial spray serums (!) are innovation at its best. { buy }

For the green girl: Osmia Organics Sunset Body Oil

Osmia Organics is a company that I was introduced to pretty recently, but I'm completely smitten with their range. Run by a former emergency room doctor who found her calling in all-natural skincare, the entire Osmia line up is exquisitely packaged, all-natural, and beautifully formulated.

While perfumes and skincare can be hard to pick for someone else, though, Osmia's body oils & soaps are a great way to gift a little luxury without the worry. Sunset, one of Dr. Sarah Villafranco's newest creations, is a super-sexy (but not at all overpowering) jojoba-based blend that hydrates immediately with absolutely no oiliness left on the skin. { buy }

For the best friend: Je Joue MiMi Soft

Here's your not-so-fun science fact of the day: did you know that only 25% of women report frequently experiencing orgasms during intercourse? We live in a culture that's so fixated on sex, and yet — from magazines (five surprising tips on how to please your man!) to porn, sex is all about male pleasure, not female.

In the spirit of the season, consider giving someone the gift of self-love. Let them know that, like leaving the house without your makeup, sex isn't anything to be ashamed of. And if we get to indulge in a bit of really indulgent tech while on the road to sexual equality? All the better.

The Je Joue MiMi Soft is small, classy, and discreet, with a comfortable soft silicone finish (the safest material a vibrator could possibly be made from), a waterproof body, and a rechargeable battery. And the charger, you guys. The charger is so cool. It magnetizes onto the up/down buttons and supplies the vibrator with power through science magic, and I won't be told otherwise. { buy }

Annabelle TwistUp in Cherry — from this post

For the lip lover: Annabelle Cosmetics TwistUp Retractable Lip Crayon in Naked or Cherry

These lip crayons may not feel super-luxe when you hold them, but oh my – do they ever pack a punch. With a lush, comfortable formula and way more pigment than any drugstore product has any right to have, Annabelle TwistUps are the perfect choice for a bit of luxury on a budget.

Naked is a stunning satin-matte nude that suits my skintone (and a surprising many others) just perfectly, while Cherry is a drop-dead-gorgeous opulent red. Neither have shimmer, and (excuse my French) are classy as hell on the lips. { buy | review | swatches | win one! }

For the luxury makeup lover: Make Up For Ever Artisan Brushes

I know I usually put my beloved Cozzette brushes in gift guides, and don't get me wrong — I still love them. But while the Artisan brush range is just as soft, cruelty-free, and well-made as Cozzette's S range, Make Up For Ever's new brushes come with sleek, wood-finish handles and dark metal ferrules that Cozzette's range just doesn't have.

I can't speak for all of Make Up For Ever's brushes, but the #150 Angled Cheek Brush, #174 Small Concealer Brush, and #304 Lip Brush all get my seal of approval. And, I mean, really — who couldn't use just one more brush? { buy }
